Membership Committees & Working Groups

AIMA's Membership Committees and Working Groups are open to AIMA member firms. Opportunities to participate in them are highlighted in the AIMA Weekly News, AIMA's global newsletter.

Working groups are established as a result of interest shown in a topic by the membership, or staff assessment of the importance of an issue.

The composition of a working group is usually a mix of fund managers and service providers. Membership on single-tier working groups and panels of experts is usually open, although there are some exceptions.

Membership of the Standing Committees and Alternative Credit Council is by invitation only.

How can you get involved?

Calls for volunteers for new working groups are announced in our Weekly News mailing. You can volunteer for a particular existing group by using the contact details on the following pages.

What happens next?

When you are added to a working group, you can expect to receive updates on the the regulation relevant to that group, as well as invitations to join calls and meetings of the working group.

Members of our working groups are encouraged to ask for new topics to be raised on calls, and make suggestions for new guidance notes or summaries.

Active working group participants might also be asked to participate in meetings with policymakers.

Our working groups often work in cooperation with other trade associations including, but not limited, the Managed Funds Association and the Investment Association.
